

Two More Sessions on Parking Proposals Today

Thursday, 29 May 2014 09:55

---

Two more sessions today to hear what people in La Crosse think of proposed parking rule changes in the city. Neighborhood Revitalization Commission chair Sara Sullivan says she came away from their first info session with lots of input, good and bad.

\(Click for Audio\)

PLenty have complained about proposed changes that would, among other things, restrict parking on all city streets to two hour zones. A one o'clock informational session is scheduled for the Black River Beach Neighborhood center today. Another one at the Southside center at 6:30 tonight.