

Drowning . That's what caused the death of Craig Meyers according to LaCrosse county medical examiner John Steers. He tells Wizzum News that alcohol intoxication and hypothermia contributed to the 21 year old college student's death. A blood test which is the standard for testing for alcohol won't be available until next week. Steers says Meyers tested 2.8 on the urine test. But, that test registers higher than the BAC. Craig's body was found in the Mississippi River on Tuesday. He had been missing since early Sunday.
