

Hearing Coming on Ethics

Tuesday, 30 November 2010 12:08

Yes, to a quasi-judicial hearing. No, to a long one. Essentially the decision from La Crosse's Ethics Board regarding alleged ethics missteps by mayor Matt Harter. The board has agreed to allow a short, possibly one day hearing for new evidence to be presented by those who have filed an ethics complaint against the mayor. Among other limits, the board has stipulated that any new evidence must directly pertain to issues outlined in a report by an outside law firm that was released in the summer. That hearing should be held soon.
