A La Crosse guy's facing his sixth OWI after a run in with a light pole this week-end. Cops say 43 year-old Sean Iverson knocked down a traffic light at Rose and Livingston streets on the northside on Saturday just before midnight. They say he just destroyed his car in the light pole encounter and it had to be towed. Iverson they found in a northside bar. Wouldn't take a breath test but they say he was pretty solidly drunk. Besides the sixth OWI, Iverson faces an additional hit and run charge.
