

La Crosse's most infamous mother is back in trouble. Indra Book was nabbed by cops walking into a bar Sunday night. Book was convicted in the death of her infant child back in 2007. She spent time in a halfway house and has repeatedly flirted with prison time after a series of arrests usually involving alcohol and drugs. Cops say the 23 year-old was drinking Sunday, in violation of the probation sentence she began serving just last summer. That probation was nearly revoked last winter after getting arrested several times, including once for attacking her boyfriend.
