

The mayor takes care of the day to day operations in La Crosse city hall.

But that would change if a city administrator is added. Mayor Matt Harter doesn't like the idea. He says there's a lack of accountability with a city administrator

The city administrator idea has come up before in La Crosse. The last time--nearly four years ago--the city council killed it before a study on the position could be conducted.