

So far, a La Crosse city council committee working on new electronic sign regulations has been in the information gathering phase. Council member Bob Seaquist is on that committee. Says he's heard plenty about how distracting and dangerous electronic billboards can be for drivers

La Crosse has a year-long moratorium on electronic signs while the committee works on the rules. Onalaska and the county are also developing sign regulations.