

First Winter Storm Coming

Friday, 02 December 2011 11:10 -

A winter storm watch is in effect for west central Wisconsin for Saturday. A potent storm system is expected to impact travel conditions. That's why ReadyWisconsin is encouraging motorists to be prepared before they hit the highways.

Ready Wisconsin's Tod Pritchard says the system will move into Wisconsin bringing a rain and snow mixture late tonight and then turning into snow on Saturday. Western and Central Wisconsin are expected to receive the heaviest snowfall amounts of up to six inches.
