

La Crosse might put in some money to pay for a new study. This one would consider whether it makes sense to move interstate exit 3 in order to spark some economic life in the area. Just a few thousand dollars for the study but moving the exit could have a huge impact, says Andrea Richmond whose district covers the exit 3 area

The council this month will vote on whether to help pay for a study. The DOT already has plans in place for rebuilding the aging interchange.