

The Blair Taylor School District is looking at going to a 4-day school week....and they have the approval from the Department of Public Instruction. But before kids start thinking it's a 3-day weekend coming...Superintendent, Dennis Pervetski says think again.

He says students would likely have either Monday or Friday off and classes would start at about 8 a.m. and end no later than 4 p.m. A firm structure will come after public meetings are held. If it's approved, they would become the first district in the state to have 4 day school weeks.
