

Tough decisions, maybe for city leaders in La Crosse. The city wants to develop the former industrial Mobil Oil site. But many also want to tackle struggling neighborhood values. And maybe can't afford to do both at the same time, says housing expert at the UW Extension office, Karl Green

The city's been working on acquiring and cleaning up the 65 acre site on the Black River for years. So far, there's no solid plan on what to turn it into.