

Soldiers Going To College In Droves

Sunday, 18 March 2012 21:10 -

In recent years there's been a 57 percent jump in veteran and service member enrollment in state colleges and universities in Minnesota. And the number will continue to climb with more troops coming home soon, says Steve Frantz, the veterans re-entry education director for MNSCU.

He says his staff is doing whatever they can for troops to be able to transition into students again and let them know what available fields they can get into or what classes they have available for those wanting more training in their military field.