

We've heard for quite some time now that Holmen needs a new library and it's in the works. But Village President, Nancy Proctor, says that's not the only thing needed right now.

And with a $10 million budget set by the village board recently and demolition of some property on tap for this summer.....a new police station and new public works garage are all beyond just a vision now for village leaders.