

New Delay For Koula Murder Trial, Now Set For June 4th

Wednesday, 04 April 2012 15:58 -

A new delay in the murder trial of Eric Koula...

Jury selection is being delayed until the first week of June, to give both sides more opportunity to review evidence and witnesses. The Koula trial had been scheduled to start next week. This May will mark two years since Koula's parents were found shot to death at their Barre Mills home. Eric Koula is accused of committing the murders in order to get money from his parents' bank account, to pay off debts from stock trading.