

Garbage Regulation Revisions Again on Hold in La Crosse

New garbage regulations are on hold for another two months in La Crosse. The delay comes as landlords complain to the city council that the new rules are still too restrictive and could leave them on the hook for junk their tenants leave curbside. Work on the new rules began last May in response to complaints about the piles of trash left after the spring exodus of college students in certain neighborhoods. The plan now, apparently, to refine the garbage rules in order to provoke fewer complaints from rental property owners.
