A convicted robber will wait two more months to be sentenced for a holdup that happened two years ago...

Samuel Wing has requested a second pre-trial investigation, before he is sentenced for a May 2010 armed robbery at a Burger King in Onalaska. Judge Elliott Levine granted the request, and rescheduled the sentencing hearing for June 12th. Wing is seeking a more favorable review than the original pre-sentence report recommending a long prison term. Wing and another man forced their way into the restaurant before it opened for the day, and he fired a shot during the robbery.
