

Broken Bar Window Leads to Bar Owner Rundown

Tuesday, 17 April 2012 07:05 -

When a drunk guy busted out a window in a bar in downtown La Crosse this week-end at about three in the morning, he probably didn't expect the bar's owner to chase him down. But, cops say, that's exactly how they managed to arrest Justin Halvorsen. The owner of the bar on the corner of fourth and Jay and an employee chased Halvorsen for several blocks after they saw him break one of the bar's windows after closing time. They finally got ahold of him after he jumped out of the bushes trying to tackle the employee. The two sat on the 23 year-old from Caledonia until cops there.