

An effort to expand wellness education could use some help. La Crosse county nutritionist Linda Lee is hoping for support for a 450 thousand dollar grant to, among other things, add to the current Farm-to-School effort in the county

The grant comes from the feds through the UW system. It's a competitive grant and bonus points are awarded for the county's grant application based on votes gathered online.