

La Crosse TV anchor Jennifer Livingston seems to be everywhere in the media today...

One day after speaking out about bullying during a Channel 8 newscast, Livingston was a guest on three network morning news shows, and has been mentioned on others. And her name turns up 22-million references on Yahoo. She told the 'CBS This Morning' program that she didn't make the statements about bullying to get publicity. Livingston responded on the air to a viewer who suggested that she's a bad role-model to young people because she's overweight.