

Are we in too much of a panic about that 'fiscal cliff'?

Congressman Ron Kind certainly is worried about the need to settle certain spending and tax matters before the start of the new year. But Kind says some solutions can wait a little longer. Democrat Kind says the economic fixes that are needed will be unpopular with people from both parties. Congress goes back into session on Tuesday, for the first time since the election.