

Still worried that the fiscal cliff of last month has messed up your filing your taxes? No worries now says Christopher Miller with the IRS in Wisconsin.

\(Click for Audio\)

Miller says don't worry if you haven't received your expected IRS tax refund. Most people haven't and the fiscal cliff is to blame. The Internal Revenue Service is far behind its normal pace in processing federal tax returns and mailing billions of dollars in refunds. This year's delay is an unwelcome byproduct of Congress' standoff over the so called fiscal cliff at the end of last year.