

Winona State Freshman's Death At Dorm Remains Mystery

Monday, 18 February 2013 11:50 -

Students at a Winona State University dorm will be able to talk with counselors in their building today, following the death of a resident in the dorm this weekend.

The counselors will be available this afternoon and tonight at Morey Hall on campus, where freshman Mitchell Grierson was discovered dead in his room. The time and cause of Grierson's death have not been established. Winona State vice president Connie Gores says there is no safety risk to other students at the university. Grierson is the second student found dead at Morey Hall since early 2011.
