

The Catholic Church may have a new pope, but he'll probably continue church business as usual.

La Crosse Bishop William Callahan does not expect Francis the 1st, from Argentina, to make any radical changes in the church. However, Callahan says the pope may bring a different point of view to the position, as a Jesuit and as the first pope from the Americas. Francis was chosen by cardinals on the second day of balloting at the Vatican.