

Some travelers who tried to schedule American Airlines flights through La Crosse had trouble yesterday...

They found that they couldn't arrange any American flights on-line, in or out of La Crosse, after September 1st...leaving some to wonder whether the airline's local service was going to change. But airport manager Clint Torp blames a computer problem for the confusion, and things are back to normal today. American offers four flights in and four flights out every day, between La Crosse and Chicago.
