

Road Spending Finally Going Up

Sunday, 22 September 2013 19:59 - Last Updated Sunday, 22 September 2013 20:00

It's the first such increase since 2008. Cities are spending more money on local road repairs. That's according to Todd Berry with the Wisconsin Taxpayers Alliance.

\(Click for Audio\)

Berry says communities appear to be in a catch up mode, with a renewed focus on road work after they directed their resources to other areas when the economy went south.