

Building a new building on the Western Technical College campus has put some students in a bit of a bind. Western's Mike Pieper.

So, the Western Board voted this week to find a new building to move into for that two to five year span. The choice? The 25 thousand square foot Weaver Building on the city's southside. Pieper says the Trane Company will be moving out of the building soon and Western will move on a part time basis. Could be long term down the road though.
