

New Food Labels Slowing Moving Forward

Friday, 28 February 2014 11:27 - Last Updated Friday, 28 February 2014 11:29

Do you ever read the nutrition labels on the sides of food products? Get confusing sometimes? Well those nutrition facts labels on nearly every food package in grocery stores are getting a new look. Valerie Pampuch with Gunderson Health System in La Crosse says a good example of change is on small bag of potato chips.

\(Click for Audio\)

Calories would be in larger, bolder type, and consumers would know whether foods have added sugars under label changes proposed by the Obama administration.