

31 votes. That's how many it took for the Tomah School referendum to pass on election day last week. Until the official election canvas Monday. Tomah District Superintendent, Cindy Zahrté says that's when things all changed for the city and the district.

\(Click for Audio\)

After the ballot snafu from the Towns of Clifton and Grant were found....the referendum had failed by 25 votes. What's next for the school district? Zahrté says possible cuts though she wouldn't go in detail on what's being cut.