The city of La Crosse is getting plans ready for Oktoberfest. While police begin scheduling for the new four-day fest schedule, considerations about watching parades is also underway. The city's board of public works today is considering the city's policy for camping out or trying to save spots in the right of way for the fest's Maple Leaf parade. The city's policy doesn't allow anything in the right of way before midnight of parade day. any of that stuff can be removed and those who violate the ordinance face a $114 fine.
