

Overtime Boosts Pay of Former Drug Investigator

Thursday, 18 February 2010 07:56 - Last Updated Tuesday, 23 March 2010 14:11

Six digit wage earners working for the city of La Crosse?

According to our examination of pay records from city hall, there was only four who earned a wage of over a hundred thousand dollars in 2009. City attorney Stephen Matty is at the top of the heap, earning a little over 103 thousand dollars last year. Police Chief Ed Kondracki is second, then Public Works director, Dale Hexom. Then fire chief Gregg Cleveland. Just missing the hundred K cut-off; now-retired drug investigator, Cary Joholski who made just under 100 thousand which includes slightly over 11 thousand dollars in overtime.