

Woman on Complaint Against Mayor Says, 'Enough'

Monday, 24 January 2011 18:30 -

Although more could come of the La Crosse mayor's ethics case, at least one of those who signed onto the original ethics complaint hopes nothing will. June Kjome says she's satisfied with the work of the city's ethics board regarding mayor Matt Harter's meetings with the county solid waste director back in February. She says the board appeared to make a solid evaluation based on the information available. And, Kjome agrees with the ethics board and says the mayor's been through enough; no further punishment is necessary. A city council committee will likely weigh in on any potential discipline soon.
